

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
AT TACOMA/ SEATTLE

JACOB F.,

Plaintiff,

v.

ACTING COMMISSIONER OF SOCIAL SECURITY,

Defendant.

Case No. 2:22-cv-01084

ORDER REVERSING AND REMANDING DEFENDANT'S
DECISION TO DENY BENEFITS

Plaintiff filed this action pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 405(g) for judicial review of defendant's denial of plaintiff's application for supplemental security income ("SSI") and disability insurance benefits ("DIB"). Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(c), Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 73, and Local Rule MJR 13, the parties have consented to have this matter heard by the undersigned Magistrate Judge. Dkt. 5. Plaintiff challenges the ALJ's decision finding that plaintiff was not disabled. Dkt. 2, Complaint.

The Court is reviewing the decision of the Social Security Administration for the second time. Plaintiff filed applications for SSI and DIB on April 26, 2016, which were denied by the Commissioner on initial review. AR 88. After an ALJ determined plaintiff was not disabled between May 20, 2015 – February 25, 2018, but was disabled starting on February 25, 2018 -- his 50th birthday -- Magistrate Judge J. Richard Creatura found the ALJ erred as to the portion of the decision finding non-disability, and reversed and remanded for additional proceedings. AR 1232-1241.

1 On remand, the ALJ conducted a hearing on March 2, 2022. AR 1159-1196. The 2 ALJ determined again that plaintiff was not disabled before February 25, 2018. AR
3 1150. For the reasons stated below, the Court finds the ALJ committed harmful error
4 and the case must be remanded for further proceedings.

6 Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 405(g), this Court may set aside the Commissioner's
7 denial of Social Security benefits if the ALJ's findings are based on legal error or not
8 supported by substantial evidence in the record as a whole. Revels v. Berryhill, 874
9 F.3d 648, 654 (9th Cir. 2017) (internal citations omitted). Substantial evidence is “such 10 relevant evidence as a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a 11 conclusion.” Biestek v. Berryhill, 139 S. Ct. 1148, 1154 (2019) (internal citations 12 omitted). The Court must consider the administrative record as a whole. Garrison v.
13 Colvin, 759 F.3d 995, 1009 (9th Cir. 2014). The Court also must weigh both the 14 evidence that supports and evidence that does not support the ALJ’s conclusion. Id.
15 The Court may not affirm the decision of the ALJ for a reason upon which the ALJ did
16 not rely. Id. Rather, only the reasons identified by the ALJ are considered in the scope 17 of the Court’s review. Id.

18 In this case, the ALJ found the following severe impairments: “ankylosing 19 spondylitis, degenerative disc disease of the cervical spine, osteoarthritis of the bilateral 20 knee, fibromyalgia, obesity, dermatitis and depression.” AR 1137.

21 Plaintiff asserts that the ALJ should have re-opened previous applications that 22 plaintiff filed on May 29, 2013. Dkt. 12, Plaintiff’s Opening Brief, at 3; see AR 71-79 (ALJ 23 decision dated 5-19-2015). Yet the record shows the ALJ who conducted the hearing on 24

1 March 2, 2022 in the present case considered the entire period, including the period that 2 was reviewed in the 2013 applications.

3 The first ALJ who conducted a hearing on plaintiff's 2016 application for DIB and 4 SSI benefits determined that plaintiff was disabled as of February 25, 2018 but not prior;
5 that ALJ relied on a date of onset of May 20, 2015 (the date of onset originally asserted
6 by plaintiff was December 12, 2011 but it was amended during the hearing). AR 1206.

7 The ALJ found that plaintiff was disabled from the date he turned 50-years-old,
8 February 25, 2018. AR 1212. This finding was not overturned by the order of Judge
9 Creatura, and it was affirmed by the Appeals Council. AR 1232-1241; see also, AR
10 1251 (Supplemental Security Income, Notice of Award).

11 Therefore, if the ALJ in the present case had refused to re-open the previous 12 applications, the Court would anticipate the scope of review as being the time period
13 reviewed by the previous ALJ (who issued the 2018 opinion finding he was not disabled 14 before February 25, 2018) -- between the amended date of onset -- May 20, 2015 and 15 February 25, 2018. See, AR 1134; Dkt. 12, Plaintiff's Opening Brief, at 3. Yet, the ALJ
16 who conducted the March 2, 2022 remand hearing found plaintiff was not disabled 17 between December 12, 2011 and February 25, 2018 (plaintiff was disabled between 18 February 25, 2018 and the date of the ALJ's ruling, because the Appeals Council
19 affirmed the disability finding). AR 1150.

20 Apparently the ALJ in the present case re-opened plaintiff's previous applications 21 and considered testimony and evidence concerning the period beginning with 22 December 12, 2011, which was close to the date of onset that was alleged in the 23 previous applications. AR 1134-1150; see AR 71 (ALJ decision in 2015 identifies

1 alleged date of onset as December 16, 2011). Plaintiff's argument that the ALJ refused
2 to re-open and consider the entire period is not supported by the record. See, AR 1146
3 ("I have considered this prior decision in accordance with Chavez and AR 97-4(9). The 4 evidence of record includes additional medical evidence for the relevant time period").
5 Even if the ALJ did not formally re-open the 2013 applications, the entire period of 6 December 12, 2011 through February 25, 2018 was reviewed and therefore any error
7 would be harmless.

8 DISCUSSION

9 A. RFC Determination

10 Plaintiff argues the ALJ committed harmful error by deciding on a residual functional
11 capacity (RFC) without including certain functional limitations. Plaintiff contends the ALJ
12 should have found that plaintiff's statements about symptoms, and about drug side 13 effects, should not have been discounted. Dkt. 12, Plaintiff's Opening Brief, at 8-11. In 14 addition, plaintiff asserts that the ALJ erroneously discounted the medical opinion
15 evidence of Dr. Thorpe and Dr. Martin. Dkt. 12 at 6-11.

16 According to the RFC, plaintiff can perform sedentary work. AR 1141. Plaintiff would 17 have the following limitations as exceptions to sedentary work: "(1) can occasionally
18 climb stairs and ramps; (2) can never climb ladders or scaffolds; (3) can occasionally 19 stoop, kneel, crouch and crawl; (4) can occasionally reach overhead and frequently 20 reach in all other directions with the bilateral upper extremities; (5) can have occasional 21 exposure to extreme cold; and (6) can have occasional exposure to hazards such as 22 unprotected heights and moving mechanical parts." Id.

1 Also, the ALJ found that plaintiff had the residual functional capacity to “understand,
2 remember, and carry out simple instructions”; he could also “have occasional interaction
3 with supervisors, coworkers and the public”. Id. In addition, the ALJ determined plaintiff 4 would be able to “only make simple, work-related decisions”, and would be able to “only 5 tolerate occasional change in work location. . .and cannot work at a strict production
6 rate such as the rate required to work on an assembly line. Id.

7 1. Whether the ALJ erred in discounting the medical opinions of Dr. Thorpe
8 and Dr. Martin

9 Plaintiff asserts that Dr. Thorpe’s opinion and Dr. Martin’s opinion should not have 10 been discounted by the ALJ. Dkt. 12, Opening Brief, at 6-8. The defendant argues that 11 the ALJ included more restrictive limitations than were opined by Dr. Martin, and 12 therefore any error would be harmless. Dkt. 19, Defendant’s Brief at 8. The record
13 shows Dr. Martin found plaintiff would be able to work at the light exertional level. AR
14 133-135, 150-152. The ALJ found plaintiff would have the ability to perform sedentary 15 work – a more restrictive set of limitations than would apply to light exertional level work.
16 This would be harmless error -- it is inconsequential to the non-disability determination.
17 Stout v. v. Comm’r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 454 F.3d 1050, 1054 (9th Cir. 2006).

18 With respect to Dr. Thorpe, plaintiff argues that Dr. Thorpe’s opinion was supported 19 by the longitudinal evidence. Dkt. 12, at 6-8. The defendant argues that Dr. Thorpe had 20 not been a treating physician; the check-box form did not provide sufficient explanation;
21 and Dr. Thorpe’s opinion was inconsistent with the longitudinal record. Dkt. 19 at 9-10.

22 Plaintiff filed their applications for Title II and Title XVI benefits prior to March 27, 23 2017, therefore under the applicable regulations, an ALJ must provide “clear and

1 convincing” reasons to reject the uncontradicted opinions of an examining doctor, and 2 “specific and legitimate” reasons to reject the contradicted opinions of an examining 3 doctor. See Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 830-31 (9th Cir. 1995). When an examining 4 physician's opinion is contradicted, the opinion can be rejected “for specific and 5 legitimate reasons that are supported by substantial evidence in the record.” Id.
6 (citing Andrews v. Shalala, 53 F.3d 1035, 1043 (9th Cir. 1995); Murray v. Heckler, 722
7 F.2d 499, 502 (9th Cir. 1983)).

8 An examining physician’s opinion is “entitled to greater weight than the opinion of 9 a non-examining physician.” Lester v. Chater, at 830 (citations omitted); see also 20
10 C.F.R. § 404.1527(c)(1) (“Generally, we give more weight to the opinion of a source
11 who has examined you than to the opinion of a source who has not examined you”). A 12 non-examining physician’s or psychologist’s opinion may not constitute substantial 13 evidence by itself sufficient to justify the rejection of an opinion by an examining 14 physician or psychologist. Lester, at 831 (citations omitted). However, “it may constitute 15 substantial evidence when it is consistent with other independent evidence in the 16 record.” Tonapetyan v. Halter, 242 F.3d 1144, 1149 (9th Cir. 2001) (citing Magallanes, 17 supra, 881 F.2d at 752).

18 In this case, Dr. Thorpe is an examining physician who did not treat plaintiff but 19 evaluated plaintiff on January 29, 2016. Dr. Thorpe’s evaluation notes that plaintiff plays 20 in a band, sings and plays guitar; plaintiff has anxiety, withdraws, sleeps all the time, 21 has no energy, and has chronic long-term pain; Dr. Thorpe observed that plaintiff
22 described his situation this way: “I got depression to where I just don’t want to live 23 anymore” AR 340.

1 Dr. Thorpe indicated that plaintiff was diagnosed (AR 340) with cannabis 2 dependence disorder, daily use; pain disorder with both psychological factors and 3 general medical condition; and major depressive disorder, recurrent, with suicidal 4 ideation.

5 Regarding plaintiff's functional limitations (AR 341), Dr. Thorpe found the 6 following were severe limitations: (1) "work safely, aware of normal hazards, take 7 precautions"; (2) "communicate/perform – work setting"; (3) "do normal work week w/o
8 symptoms interruption"; (4) "set realistic goals/plan independently". Dr. Thorpe found 9 the following were marked limitations: (1) "perform w/schedule regular attendance, 10 punctual"; (2) "perform routine tasks w/out special supervision"; (3) "adapt to changes in 11 routine work". In addition, Dr. Thorpe found the following moderate functional limitations:
12 (1) "COMPLEX instructions – understand, carry out, recall, persist"; and (2) "ask simple 13 questions/request assistance".

14 These findings were discounted by the ALJ based on (AR 1146-1147):

- 15 • No treating history at the time of the evaluation on January 29, 2016;
- 16 • Dr. Thorpe used a check-box form and did not provide sufficient explanation 17 or analysis;
- 18 • Dr. Thorpe's opinion is inconsistent with the other medical evidence, and is 19 also inconsistent with Dr. Thorpe's own evaluation notes.

20 With respect to the ALJ's first reason, the fact the Dr. Thorpe examined plaintiff 21 once is not, in and of itself, a specific, legitimate reason for discounting the opinion. An 22 examining doctor, by definition, does not have a treating relationship with a claimant 23 and usually only examines the claimant one time. See 20 C.F.R. § 404.1527. "When

1 considering an examining physician's opinion . . . it is the quality, not the quantity of the 2 examination that is important. Discrediting an opinion because the examining doctor
3 only saw claimant one time would effectively discredit most, if not all, examining doctor
4 opinions." Yeakey v. Colvin, 2014 WL 3767410 at *6 (W.D. Wash. July 31, 2014).
5 Therefore, the ALJ improperly rejected Dr. Thorpe's opinion because it was based on a 6 one-time examination rather than a treating physician relationship.

7 Regarding the consistency with the medical record leading up to the date of Dr.
8 Thorpe's assessment, the longitudinal record shows that plaintiff was seen by mental 9 health professionals at SeaMar clinic for depression during 2013-2015 -- before Dr.
10 Thorpe's evaluation on January 29, 2016. AR 357-370, 377-448.

11 At a SeaMar intake assessment on May 8, 2013, plaintiff was found to have 12 marked impairments in the ability to manage daily activities. AR 432. The mental status
13 examination at intake showed depression, sadness, anger, irritability, and hostility. AR
14 430-431. Plaintiff was found to be a low suicide risk, but he was taking psychotropic 15 medications and was diagnosed with a major depressive disorder, recurrent, moderate.
16 AR 434-439. The treatment recommendation was individual counseling and medication
17 therapy. AR 438. During 2013-2015, plaintiff was having psychotherapy appointments 18 more than once a month, at times improving, at times neither improving nor 19 deteriorating, and at other times he regressed. See, e.g., AR 367 (plaintiff felt suicidal
20 and the mental health professional helped him make a crisis plan), AR 370 (plaintiff
21 regressed in early 2015); AR 357, 440-448 (some improvement in late 2015, medicated
22 with lamictal as noted on 10-12-2015); AR 804-805 (plaintiff's dosage of lorazepam is 23 doubled in June 2015 to address anxiety). The record shows plaintiff was being treated

1 for depression during 2013-2015, and his symptoms were consistent with what Dr.
2 Thorpe found in January 2016; therefore the ALJ's first reason is not supported by the 3 record.

4 With respect to whether Dr. Thorpe's assessment is inconsistent with other
5 medical evidence in the record, and whether it is consistent with Dr. Thorpe's own
6 findings, the evaluation of the non-examining consulting physicians is different from Dr.
7 Thorpe's assessment. See, AR 101-102 (Dr. Lewis); AR 132-137 (Dr. Postovoit). Yet
8 independent evidence from before and after Dr. Thorpe's assessment shows that 9 plaintiff suffered from recurring depression and received frequent psychiatric treatment
10 with medications, and also frequent psychotherapy. See e.g., AR 344-345 (treatment 11 notes dated 5-11-2016, and 5-27-2016, showing depression and anxiety improving but 12 then getting worse), AR 468 (documented Sea Mar appointments for depression and 13 anxiety between June and October, 2016). There were periods of improvement, periods
14 of no change, and periods of regression. Throughout treatment, plaintiff's symptoms 15 were consistently expressed -- he wanted to avoid interacting with other persons, and 16 his psychological symptoms made it difficult to perform any tasks of daily living because 17 of fatigue, hopelessness, and of wanting to die.

18 A check-box form may be used by medical professionals, and should only be 19 discounted if the form is unsupported, or unexplained and not clear. Garrison v. Colvin,
20 759 F.3d 995, 1013 (9th Cir. 2014)).

21 The marks on the check-box form are not the only record that Dr. Thorpe made 22 of plaintiff's evaluation. See AR 341. Dr. Thorpe conducted a clinical interview, and 23 noted the answers plaintiff gave concerning topics that were covered with plaintiff during 24
25

1 the evaluation. AR 340. Dr. Thorpe also conducted a mental status examination. AR
2 342. This is not simply a check-box evaluation. The ALJ's decision on this point is not 3 supported by the record.

4 The defendant asserts that the Court should affirm because Dr. Lewis and Dr.
5 Postovoit's opinions would constitute substantial evidence. Dkt. 19 at 8. But, the opinion 6 of a non-treating or non-examining physician may serve as substantial evidence only if 7 "the opinions are consistent with independent clinical findings or other evidence in the 8 record". Thomas v. Barnhart, 278 F.3d 947, 957 (9th Cir. 2002). In this case, the 9 longitudinal record shows that plaintiff's symptoms were persistent and more severe 10 than opined by Dr. Lewis and Dr. Postovoit. Therefore, the ALJ erred in relying on their 11 opinions while rejecting Dr. Thorpe's.

12 Harmless error

13 An error that is inconsequential to the non-disability determination is harmless.
14 Stout v. v. Comm'r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 454 F.3d 1050, 1054 (9th Cir. 2006). If the errors
15 of the ALJ result in a residual functional capacity (RFC) that does not include relevant 16 work-related limitations, the RFC is deficient and the error is not harmless. Id at 1052, 17 1054; see also, Carmickle v. Comm'r. Spc. Sec. Admin., 533 F.3d 1155, 1160 (9th Cir.
18 2008); Embrey v. Bowen, 849 F.2d 418, 422-423 (9th Cir. 1988); Stramol-Spirz v. Saul, 19 848 Fed. Appx. 715, 718 (9th Cir. 2021) (unpublished). In this case, the error is 20 consequential. When the RFC is incomplete, the hypothetical question presented to the 21 vocational expert at step five is also incomplete, "and therefore the ALJ's reliance on the 22 vocational expert's answers [is] improper." Hill v. Astrue, 698 F.3d 1153, 1162 (9th Cir.
23 2012).

1 Plaintiff's RFC does not contain limitations that are consistent with the level of 2 limitations that Dr. Thorpe opined. Moreover, the longitudinal record supports Dr.
 3 Thorpe's opined limitations and therefore, the ALJ should have asked questions of the 4 Vocational Expert (V.E.) to include more onerous psychological and psychiatric 5 limitations.

6 2. Plaintiff's statements regarding subjective symptoms

7 In assessing plaintiff's credibility, the ALJ must determine whether plaintiff has 8 presented objective medical evidence of an underlying impairment. If such evidence is 9 present and there is no evidence of malingering, the ALJ can only reject plaintiff's 10 testimony regarding the severity of his symptoms for specific, clear and convincing 11 reasons. Ghanim v. Colvin, 763 F.3d 1154, 1163 (9th Cir. 2014) (citing Lingenfelter v.
 12 Astrue, 504 F.3d 1028, 1036 (9th Cir. 2007)).

13 "Contradiction with the medical record is a sufficient basis for rejecting the 14 claimant's subjective testimony." Carmickle v. Comm'r, Soc. Sec. Admin., 533 F.3d 15 1155, 1161 (9th Cir. 2008) (citing Johnson v. Shalala, 60 F.3d 1428, 1434 (9th 16 Cir.1995)). But an ALJ may not reject a claimant's subjective symptom testimony "solely 17 on a lack of objective medical evidence to fully corroborate the alleged severity of pain."
 18 Bunnell v. Sullivan, 947 F.2d 341, 345 (9th Cir. 1991); Byrnes v. Shalala, 60 F.3d 639, 19 641-42 (9th Cir. 1995) (applying rule to subjective complaints other than pain).
 20 Treatment records cannot be cherry-picked; the ALJ must consider a particular record
 21 of treatment in light of the overall diagnostic record. Ghanim v. Colvin, 763 F.3d at 1164.

1 An ALJ may discount a claimant's testimony based on daily activities that either
2 contradict their testimony or that meet the threshold for transferable work skills. Orn v.
3 Astrue, 495 F.3d 625, 639 (9th Cir. 2007).

4 In this case, plaintiff testified that he had severe depression and wanted only to 5 sleep and isolate. AR 1168. He stated that he wanted to die, and he suffered anxiety
6 attacks, during which he would shake uncontrollably, and would lose control of his arms.
7 AR 1177, 1178. Plaintiff asserted that he was angry with people, did not want to deal
8 with them, and isolated so as to avoid interactions. AR 1168, 1178-1179.

9 The Court has determined that the ALJ erred by improperly evaluating the 10 medical evidence from Dr. Thorpe, and plaintiff's statements about his mental health 11 symptoms are supported by the medical record; therefore the ALJ's decision that 12 plaintiff was not credible was harmful error in formulating the RFC.

13 The remaining issues raised by plaintiff with respect to the evaluation of plaintiff's 14 subjective symptom testimony, and the evaluation of the occupations relied on by the 15 ALJ at step five, will not be addressed in this decision, because on remand, the 16 Commissioner will be conducting a new hearing and these additional issues may be re-17 evaluated, or they may become moot.

18 B. Whether the Court Should Reverse With a Direction to Award Benefits.

19 "The decision whether to remand a case for additional evidence, or simply to 20 award benefits[,] is within the discretion of the court." Trevizo v. Berryhill, 871 F.3d 664, 21 682 (9th Cir. 2017) (quoting Sprague v. Bowen, 812 F.2d 1226, 1232 (9th Cir. 1987)). If 22 an ALJ makes an error and the record is uncertain and ambiguous, the court should 23 remand to the agency for further proceedings. Leon v. Berryhill, 880 F.3d 1041, 1045
24

1 (9th Cir. 2017). Likewise, if the court concludes that additional proceedings can remedy
2 the ALJ's errors, it should remand the case for further consideration. Revels, 874 F.3d 3 at 668.

4 The Ninth Circuit has developed a three-step analysis for determining when to 5 remand for a direct award of benefits. Such remand is generally proper only where 6 “(1) the record has been fully developed and further administrative 7 proceedings would serve no useful purpose; (2) the ALJ has failed 8 to provide legally sufficient reasons for rejecting evidence, whether 9 claimant testimony or medical opinion; and (3) if the improperly

10 discredited evidence were credited as true, the ALJ would be 11 required to find the claimant disabled on remand.”

12 Trevizo, 871 F.3d at 682-83 (quoting Garrison v. Colvin, 759 F.3d 995, 1020 (9th 13 Cir. 2014)).

14 The Ninth Circuit emphasized in Leon that even when each element is satisfied, 15 the district court still has discretion to remand for further proceedings or for award of 16 benefits. Leon, 80 F.3d at 1045.

17 Here, plaintiff asks the Court to remand for an award of benefits based on the 18 ALJ's errors in evaluating the medical opinion evidence and plaintiff's subjective 19 testimony. Dkt. 12, at 15-16. The Court has found errors in the ALJ's evaluation of the 20 medical opinion evidence, and in the ALJ's assessment of plaintiff's credibility.

21 Based on a review of the record, the Court concludes the record is not fully 22 developed with respect to the date of onset. See Diedrich v. Berryhill, 874 F.3d 634, 23 639-640 (9th Cir. 2017) (in a challenging case, the ALJ may be required to have a 24 medical advisor for purposes of determining the date of onset). There is a lack of clarity 25 in the record about the date of onset – on remand the medical evidence of plaintiff's mental health condition before Dr. Thorpe's assessment in 2016 must be reviewed to 1 determine the precise date of onset; in this situation, the ALJ may be required to call on 2 a medical advisor to determine when a plaintiff's mental health disability began. Id.; see

3 also, Wellington v. Berryhill, 878 F.3d 867, 873-875 (9th Cir. 2017). And, there is still a
4 question about the precise functional limitations that should be stated in plaintiff's RFC.
5 See, Treichler, v. Cmm'r, 775 F.3d 1090, 1103-1105 (9th Cir. 2014) (Court does not use 6 the credit-as-true analysis unless a remand would serve no useful purpose, because the 7 record is free of conflicts and ambiguity).

8 CONCLUSION

9 Based on the foregoing discussion, the Court concludes the ALJ improperly 10 determined plaintiff to be not disabled. Therefore, the ALJ's decision is reversed and 11 remanded for further administrative proceedings.

12 The Commissioner is directed to re-evaluate the medical evidence concerning 13 plaintiff's mental health conditions to determine date of onset, and also to determine the 14 RFC.

15 Plaintiff should be given the opportunity to present any additional medical 16 evidence, and testimony from plaintiff, concerning plaintiff's conditions and the 17 functional limitations relating to those conditions, and any evidence of drug side effects, 18 that may be relevant to the period between the alleged date of onset -- December 12, 19 2011 and February 25, 2018. The ALJ in the 2018 decision found that plaintiff was 20 disabled from the date he turned 50-years-old, February 25, 2018. AR 1212. This 21 finding was not overturned by the order of Judge Creatura, and it was affirmed by the 22 Appeals Council. AR 1, 24-36, 1232-1241.

1 The Commissioner is directed to conduct a hearing, allow for new evidence to 2 be presented, consider whether a medical advisor is necessary for evaluating and 3 deciding the date of onset, and re-evaluate the mental health evidence as well any 4 additional testimony from plaintiff. The five-step analysis should then be conducted for 5 the period between December 12, 2011 and February 25, 2018.
